② Last night I and my companion went and visited a family named ILLIO - They were a family that Jack baptized. They didn't realize that I was Jack's brother - then I pulled out Jack's picture and I showed it to the father and he couldn't believe it. He almost started crying. He told me how much he loved Jack. He said that when Jack recieved his transfer he drove Jack all the way to his new area crying. He said Jack was not a person of many words but he was very direct and that was what he liked about Jack. They showed me a booth that Jack had given them with a dedication in it - it was so neat seeing Jack's name there. These people are very good people - Jack ~~did~~ did a very good job - they have a good knowledge of the gospel - it's just that they get a little lazy and quit going to church. They don't have any problems other than getting back to church. They still have good testimonies so I think it will be easy to get them back to church. It was quite the experience - I sat in the very same chair, talked to the very same family in the very same house in which Jack sat in 17 years ago. I don't think it was just a coincidence. Jack had told these men that someday he was going to be branch Pres.

③ Someday well that branch has grown into a ward but I don't think Jack was wrong - I think if this guy gets back to church he could still be Bishop. A couple of days before I got here to this area my district leader had visited this family and it was the first visit that the missionaries had made in a long time and the first thing they asked was if there was any way to find out about E. John Coleman. The district leader said that there just happened to be an elder Coleman coming into the area - and when they asked me if I had a relative that had served down here about 17 years ago, I just about died. Jack left quite an impression with these people and it really makes me want to work harder. It really makes me feel good to see the fruits of Jack's work and I'd hope that if John or Arron served down here that would not only see the fruits of Jack but that this family would've been to church this last week but his best friend died - now we got him excited to get back to church so when they finish the temple here he'll be able to do the work for his friend.

I guess that's about it for this week. I guess I'll give you our new address - it's E. Coleman
